

Inaugural Cocker Lecture

The School of Chemistry is delighted to announce that Prof. Karl Weighardt will be giving the 3rd Inaugural Cocker Lecture at 6:30 pm on March 5th 2015 in the Tercentary Hall (Trinity Biomedical Sciences Institute).

This named public lecture celebrates the discipline of Chemistry and is named after the former Head of School and Chair of Organic Chemistry Professor Wesley Cocker.

Professor Weighardt, the founding director of the Max-Planck-Institut für Bioanorganische Chemie (1994-2010), is an internationally renowned inorganic chemist (recipient of Centenary Medal, Royal Society of Chemistry (London), 2002, American Chemical Society Award in Inorganic Chemistry, 2006 and Wilhelm-Klemm-Prize). His lecture, entitled 'Alfred Werner (1866-1919) Founder of Coordination Chemistry: What have we learnt since?' promises to be a memorable and enjoyable event to which all are warmly invited.
